INDEPENDENT STUDY

CAMPUS OUTDOOR SPACES II

Lecturers: Livia Herle

Seven different projects have been developed over the last semester to determine and showcase various possibilities for the vast, unused space under the Cafeteria Building. With these fresh ideas in mind, this Independent Study is a continuation of these proposals. The main goal can be described as the further constructional and spatial development of one combined project. In detail, the focus will thus be on the creation of detailed plans, with specific material choices as well as the planning of the implementation phase, that will most certainly happen in the Summer Semester of 2026.

Furthermore, the use of local and sustainable material is shaping the possibilities for the project. This also requires research work with the locally available construction material as well as opening up possible collaboration with local stakeholders such as "Zirkulie". The construction should furthermore also be demountable and circular to allow a certain flexibility with this space. For instance, a winter and summer semester set up could open up a more adapted variation.

To test ideas, the building of mockups will be part of the workload. The course will consist of regular table talks with presentations as well as an end critic with individual work that will all come together in one implementation project.
